1968

To a person
whose personality
has inspired the thought of everyone in history class.
Sincerely
Ed

Doug

once in a while you came in handy when my mind started to slip in history.
Thanks a lot

You'll make it big
Some day but I don't know just when. Good luck
in your future years.

Dedication . . .

John Perrault

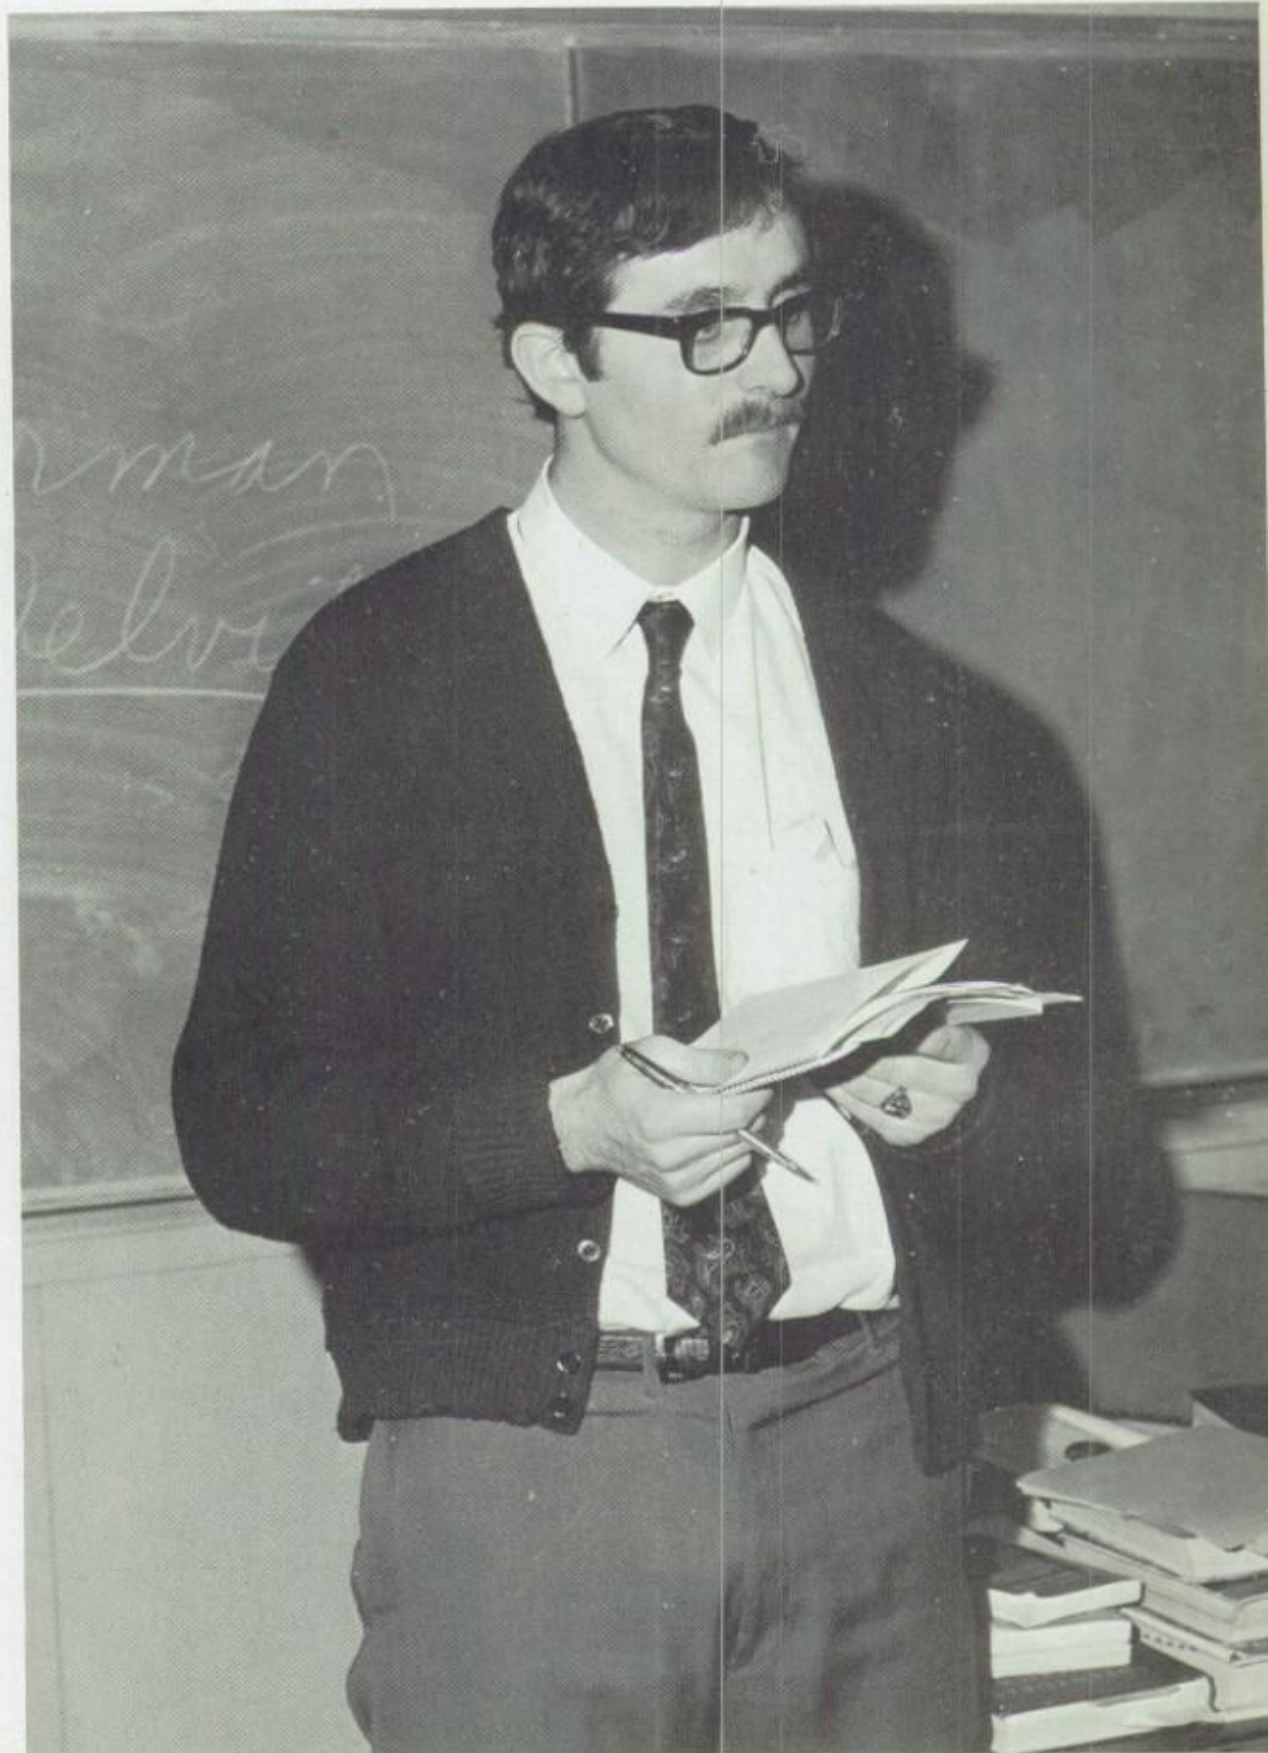

"A teacher who can arouse a feeling for one single good action, for one single good poem, accomplishes more than he who fills our memory with rows on rows of natural objects, classified with name and form."

Johann Wolfgang Von Goethe

With your "complete immersion in art" formula for the year, you gave us a feeling for literature that we had never before experienced. Your sense of humor and your great understanding of all our ideas showed that you are truly of our generation.

We dedicate this yearbook to you, Mr. Perrault, because you're one of us.

Principal's Message

Last night a national leader said in an interview on television that America faces its most critical period since the Civil War. He was discussing the riots in cities last summer. We hear constantly that negotiations or no negotiations, we must expect a long period of uncertainty in Vietnam. These are, undoubtedly, the two most difficult and distressing problems our people must solve. They are, of course, not the only ones. Some of the others would seem immense if they were not overshadowed by these two gigantic problems.

Last summer a recent graduate told me that youth today is overburdened with these problems, that it doesn't know what tomorrow will bring, that doom is just around the corner. This situation is an excuse for the "eat, drink, and be merry" philosophy, which, although it may surprise him, is not unique to his generation.

Graduation has always been a time of eager anticipation of the future. This may be difficult to sustain, not because we face great problems, we always have; but because it is becoming more and more fashionable and profitable to preach doom. We are a great people because we have solved great problems. Those who know today's youth best have confidence that we will remain a great people and will continue to find solutions to great problems. Those that run and hide from the challenges of life are still with us, but they do not constitute the youth of today. You are more worthy than that.

Departing

Senior Activities

The Senior Class was filled with much talent. Despite its small size, which was often a handicap, it produced an abundance of leaders, scholars, and athletes. President—Richard Caron, Vice President—Peter Bostrom, Secretary—Deanne Horn, and Treasurer—Cathy Martin served the class well and showed that student government was an important part of school, especially on the senior level where an abundance of decisions had to be made.

Members of the Student Council were Dean Peschel, Martha Tobey, Margaret Crowley, Marion Pawlek, Thomas Eaton, Peter Bostrom, and Richard Caron.

An excellent job was done in the class play by Roxanne Martin, Sheryl MacNeil, Jan Goss, Terry Quinn, Bill Blaisdell, and Mary Mitchell.

Terry Quinn was a semi-finalist in the NMSQT, but there were others with outstanding merit. These included Sara Chase, Donna McCrillis, and Curtis Chapman.

NHS was ably led by Doug White with membership consisting of Bonnie Marshall, Sara Chase, Margaret Wyman, Margaret Crowley, Deanne Horn, Gloria Perry, Robert Hill, and Richard Caron. Also, Thomas Eaton, Don White, Tom Potter, Dean Peschel, and Marion Pawlek.

Sports was probably the brightest spot in Traip's senior activities. The class was proud of its Seacoast Conference football champions led by co-captains D. Peschel and T. Averill, with T. Potter, M. Pawlek, R. and D. Mazeika, R. Madrigan, K. Fellows, D. Seaward, G. Given, P. Bostrom, G. Bisson, G. Douglas, and F. Berry. Basketball was filled with stars like Don White, M. Pawlek, D. Peschel, D. Estes, C. Chapman, Doug White, T. Potter, R. Caron, and G. Given.

What the class lacked in volume in our many cheering duels with the Juniors, we made up for in determination. After all, we seniors know that our energies are better spent in more meaningful directions.

C. Martin, R. Caron, P. Bostrom, D. Horn

Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,
And sorry I could not travel both,
And be one traveler, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth;
Then took the other, as just as fair,
And having perhaps the better claim,
Because it was grassy and wanted wear;
Though as for that the passing there
Had worn them really about the same,

And both that morning equally lay
In leaves no step had trodden black.
Oh, I kept the first for another day!
Yet knowing how way leads on to way,
I doubted if I should ever come back.
I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood, and I—
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference.

—Robert Frost

Girls' State

Attending Dirigo Girls' State proved to be a profitable experience for a variety of reasons. The most important benefit attained there was the education received in governmental procedure. Through participation, we learned about elections, primaries, and legislative actions. Another significant factor of Girls' State was the acquaintances we made. Everyone went out of her way to be pleasant and friendly. The spirit among the girls, better known as the "Girls' State Spirit," was fantastic. The only regret we delegates have concerning Dirigo Girls' State is that every girl in Maine can not have the privilege of attending.

Boys' State

Throughout the state of Maine, boys in their junior year are selected to attend the annual Boys' State Convention at the University of Maine. Here all the boys are lectured on state and town governments and are given an opportunity to form and participate in such governments. Besides these opportunities the students are able to meet boys from other schools and gain valuable friends.

Junior Activities

The Junior class was led this year by President—Kevin Fellows, Vice President—Barry Hayes, Secretary—Jean Smith, Treasurer—Linda Bell, and the following Student Council representatives: Alan Bouffard, Richard Brayall, Nancy Crawford, Sherry Fawcett, Nancy Ferguson, Kevin Fellows, Jane Smith, and Cindy White.

The triumphant varsity football team was supported by these Juniors: Ellis Field, Earl Foley, Kevin Fellows, Joe Alvord, and Frank Foss. Adding other football might were Barry Fletcher, George Clough, Steve Hosmer, Geoffrey Marshall, Tom Hackney, and Von Fields, manager.

Danny Seaward was the single Junior to follow the cross-country course this year, and in doing so he won his letter.

Making the hoop hot for the varsity basketball champs were Jeffrey Robinson, Barry Fletcher, Von Fields, and Ellis Fields.

Co-captains Danny Seaward and Frank Foss led the following Juniors and other teammates to a victorious junior varsity season: Joe Alvord, John Spiller, Earl Foley, Barry Hayes, and Steve Hosmer.

The Traip Academy "rasslers" enjoyed a winning season this year and were helped by tri-captains Tom Gillibrand, George Clough, and David Damon.

These Junior members of the girls' basketball teams added spark to the spirited club: Cindy White, Pamela Fiandaca, Susan Burnsed, Nancy Ferguson, and Vicky Johnson.

The class added to the treasury this year by selling windbreakers.

The Junior class this year had the honor of dethroning the Seniors from being the most school spirited and intend not to give up the "spirit of RTA" next year.

The prize-winning one-act play came from the Junior class this year. The cast was as follows: Debbie Downey, Richard Brayall, Frank Mellen, Jane Smith, Shirley Andrews, Dwyn Dion, Linda Crean, Karlene Parker, Sherry Fawcett, Diane Edwards, Shealagh Kimball, and Joan Burnham. Assisting student director Jeff Thomson were Nancy Ferguson, Deanne Kinsman, and Kevin Fellows. Special thanks should go to their advisor, Mr. Perrault.

The 1967-1968 Student Council established the true purpose and meaning of a Student Council. The organization was skillfully advised by Miss Phyllis Adams, head of the English Department. The Council revised and amended its constitution to improve its effectiveness. At Thanksgiving the tradition of collecting food for the local needy was continued.

The Student Council found it necessary to reconsider its basic goals and reaffirmed its basic principle of representative student voice. The Sophomore and Junior members have exerted their leadership and assumed greater responsibilities than in past years. The Council is still seeking to develop its ultimate potential of interschool and inter-community leadership.

(L-R): R. Caron, D. Horn, M. Pawlek, S. Chase, M. Wyman, Don White, B. Marshall (treasurer), D. Peschel, G. Perry, M. Crowley (secretary), R. Hill, S. MacNeil, T. Eaton (vice president), Doug White (president). Absent: T. Potter
advisor: Mrs. DeWitt.

In the heart of every student who strives and achieves beyond normal standards, there lies a certain pride of accomplishment. This pride is a part of being in the National Honor Society and is shared by all its members.

This year in the Society we have had to revamp the constitution to meet present needs and problems. As has been the custom in the past, we would also like to raise money to give a scholarship to a worthy member.

Every student should work to achieve the goals required to become elected. One may find that if he stops looking around for other students to be in the Society and looks at himself, he may find a very suitable candidate.

Band

Each year the band continues to improve with the addition of new players and instruments. The brass section in particular has benefitted from these new additions. A band has succeeded when it can play well, sound well, and be respected by students and parents.

This year three people went to the Western Maine Band Festival, and two auditioned for All State Band at Caribou. On the program for the year are a Christmas Concert, a Spring Concert, a Pops Concert, and exchange concerts with Marshwood High School and with a high school in eastern Massachusetts. Also, a Parent Musical Association has been organized this year to create a better understanding between the music department and the parents.

The chorus, under the direction of Mr. Rutherford, has had a very busy year. They, along with the Sechs-Tetes, participated in a Christmas Concert, Pops Concert, Spring Concert, and two exchange concerts. Some members also attended the Western Maine Music Festival in Sanford and the All-State Music Festival in Caribou.

The National Thespian Society has proved to be an asset to Traip Academy. To become a thespian, one must show meritorious participation in the dramatic arts. The goal of each thespian is to raise the dramatic arts program in secondary schools and to create an interest in all theatre activities. One must obtain 10 points of qualified work to meet the approval of the troupe sponsor to become a thespian. Membership in the National Thespian Society is an honor and a reward to all participating.

The Future Homemakers of America program is based on this year's goal, Constructive Leisure Time. The program strives to encourage individuals to spend their leisure time participating in activities which are beneficial to themselves and others. To begin the year's activities the officers met to plan the first meeting. The first meeting was a candlelight ceremony to inform the freshman and other classes about the purpose of our club. The first money-raising project was a car wash at Martin's Garage. Later activities are going to be food sales, toy drives, mother-daughter banquet, March of Dimes, and visits to children's homes.

The Ski Club held its first meeting on Nov. 28, 1967 with seventy members responding to the call. Since this was the first year that Mr. Livengood was in charge of the club, time was spent establishing a working organization.

The club skis at the Big "A" every Thursday evening and plans to take at least one trip to one of the major ski areas.

The major objectives of the club were introducing skiing to many Traip students and improving the skills of the rest of the club members. An added feature of the ski lessons at the Big "A" is lessons in racing and actual competition between club members and with members of other clubs in the area.

The Rangers captured the Seacoast Conference championship despite heavy odds. After tying their first two games with Morse and Marshwood, Traip defeated all other conference opponents. While Traip was debunking poetic prophets, Morse and Marshwood suffered losses that put the Rangers on top.

The Traip offense gained a total of 2552 yards. Ellis Fields was the big ground gainer with 1324 yards. Coach Smith depended on a strong ground game, but as the season progressed, the Ranger aerial attack became more effective. Earl Foley and Marion Pawlek combined to make the attack more powerful.

The Ranger defense made up for a lack of weight with an abundance of determination and sheer stubbornness. They became noted for their successful goal line stands.

Traip basketball during the '67-'68 season will undoubtedly be remembered as "the year of pride" long after the cherished clippings yellow with age and crumble into dust. It was that intense pride on the part of the players and the avid supporters that pulled the team through on many occasions. What we lacked in height we made up for in sheer hustle, determination, and skill.

Not to be overlooked is the important role played by Coach Leo Smith in the long road to the tournament and the state championship game at Bangor. He pushed, prodded, pleaded, and just plain yelled at us to get going when we became sloppy. Our '68 practices meant over 100 hours of devoted guidance from Coach Smith, and he continually stressed the importance of pride in our team play. The product was 13 hungry ball players, each contributing his best to the season in his own way.

It was at the Gorham game that co-captain Don White was the first to yell, "WE'RE NUMBER ONE!"

The Junior Varsity had another successful season, winning 17 and losing 2. Coach Jon Gordon used many combinations to roll over opponents, giving valuable experience to many and not just the starting five.

In many aspects, this year's Junior Varsity resembled last year's: in size, hustle, and in bench strength. They matched the high-scoring feats of the state champion Varsity team, scoring 45 points in one quarter alone at York High School.

The members of the Junior Varsity team have a man-sized job to do now, because it's not easy to follow up the spectacular job done by the varsity. However, with stars like E. Foley, J. Alvord, J. Raymond, and D. Leavitt, Traip has a good chance to repeat its winning ways.

The Freshman team rolled to another successful season, winning 9 of their 15 games. Coach Littlefield's first basketball assignment was a very respectable one, and he discovered much talent among the class' hopeful players, molding them into an experienced club. This was their first adventure in Traip basketball, and they were proud to represent Traip as they did. Next year's junior varsity team will be helped greatly by the fine abilities of D. Johnson, R. Wilson, T. Stockford, R. Foley, and many more.

Team spirit, dedication to practice, and the learning of the fundamentals of basketball resulted in a new "learning to win" season for the members of the 1967-68 Traip Academy girls' basketball team.

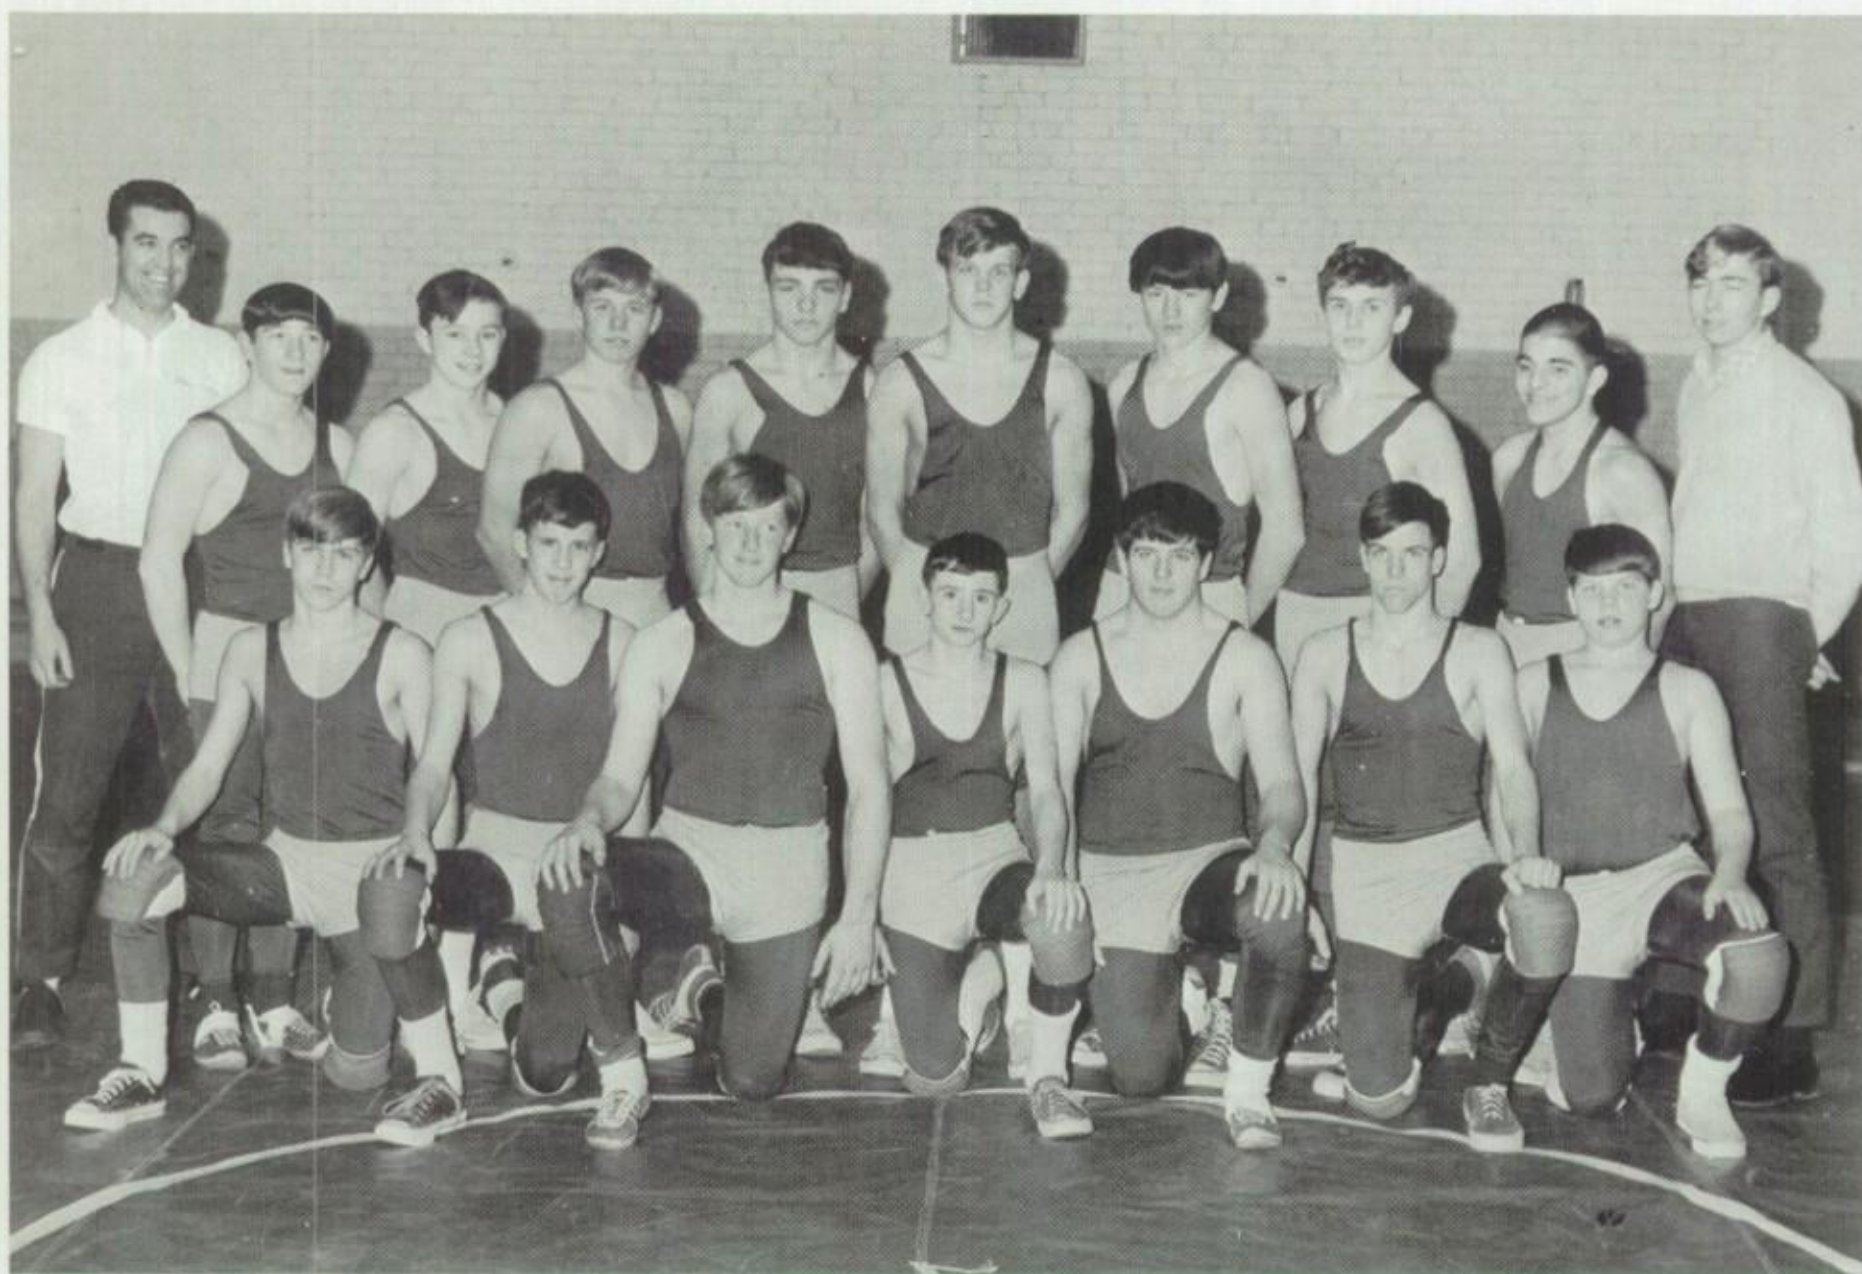

The varsity team averaged 32 points per game and surprised their opponents with a new brand of Traip Academy girls' basketball.

Kathy Chadwick, a senior, was awarded the "Outstanding Player Award" on the basis of her leadership and 17 point per game average. Gail Leather and Betty Albin, the only other seniors on the squad, played the tough non-roving guard position. Both girls did an excellent job in a position that is often overlooked. Celeste Frisbee, Cindy White, and Nancy Ferguson, all juniors, rounded out Traip's starting six.

A junior varsity team, organized after a three year lapse, holds out the hope of a bright future for girls' basketball at Traip Academy. They proved their worth by scoring six victories without a defeat against long-established junior varsity competition.

Under the leadership of its tri-captains, Ken Fellows, Tom Gillabrand, and David Ayer, the Traip Academy wrestling team experienced its finest season since the sport started 2 years ago. Team spirit and the desire to excell makes it difficult to choose any one particular wrestler who contributed most to the team. Everyone on the team carried his share of the responsibilities in each of the weight classes and gave the necessary "120%" to make this season a most successful one.

Baseball 1967 was another successful year for the Traip nine, but it was successful for more than the nine starters. On many occasions late-inning substitutions came through with timely hits to bring victory. A good example of this was an important game with previously undefeated Kennebunk. Charlie Morris came through with a two-run single to put the game on ice. This victory had to be the high point of the season.

Mike Cox led the way in pitching and batting, earning the MVP award, with Peter Bonsaint and Mike Casella showing opposing pitchers Traip's hitting power. The defense was equally good. When the bats were silent, the Traip infield shut the door on the opposition, completing unbelievable double plays to end many threats.

The team finished with a 6-7 record, good for the Eastern SYCL Championship. In the final encounter with Western champ, Marshwood, Traip bowed out by a 2-1 score.

Back Row: (Left to Right): V. Fields, R. Matte, J. Robinson, D. White, P. White, D. Ayer, D. Tobin, T. Hackney, J. Marshall, S. Hosmer, M. Savaria, B. Hayes. Front Row: M. Pawlek, J. Alvord, D. Peschel, C. Alvord, D. Powell, S. Ayer, D. Collins, R. Madrigan, T. Potter.

Traip had its finest track season in 1967, winning all seven meets. In addition they placed third in the Westbrook Relay and York County Meet, first in the S.Y.C.L. meet, and sixth in the State Meet. Team captains were elected for the first time. They were C. Alvord, D. Powell, and S. Ayer. Chris Alvord led scoring again for the third year and also received the Outstanding Athlete of York County Award.

Dave Leavitt was the man to follow in cross country this year because he placed first for Traip in every meet. Close behind in a bunch usually were Don White, David Earle, Buddy Seaward, Wayne Gardner, Don Tobin, and Ray Tobin. The "pack" was known throughout the league because it often came in together to rack up the prize positions. Even when Leavitt didn't come in first, the "coaches' dream", the pack came through to give Traip a victory. Coming up fast behind were Glenn Estes, Bruce Follansbee, Dave O'Brien, Paul White, Mike Hurley, Richard Caron, and Robert Bellville.

Doug White was a strong runner in early practices; but due to an unfortunate encounter with a fallen tree, he was forced to sit out the rest of the season.

Course Record—D. Leavitt 10/24/67 12 min. 32 sec.

Remembering

Memory

He entered the room—and the remnants of who had gone before seeped into him in bulging, scraping, scratching fragments. One window quietly silencing the fluorescence of darkness outside; and blue ink (yes, like the blue of her eyes) faded now, gone forever. Echoes of the muffled tune from her music box, her voice, her electric touch. Mutely he stood, mutely he watched the wind come and take the flame, carelessly hiding she who had gone before . . . Lenore.

The Moon and the Sea

The night was lit by the moon
The sky was enveloped with clouds
The sea was raging violently
Love filled the beach.

The tide was slowly advancing
Clearing away outsiders
I sat upon a large rock
Singing my sorrow away.

The gull's retreat was my own
The mainland seemed far away
But only in thought did it seem true
For it was beneath my feet.

I was swept away by the sea
Up I went on a moon beam
To a world all my own.
Where only fantasies linger
And don't ever disappear when ended.

The moon and the sea are the fantasies.
Living to the end of time
Only following courses
Set in golden rhyme.

So live forever glorious ones,
Time will never die.
Give young people beauty,
But remember that which was mine.

Man's Child

Child,
You must wait;
You are not yet a man;
You haven't enough wisdom,
You have yet to prove yourself.

Wait!

With time, comes wisdom,
Strength and recognition.
With time, comes age;
Then you are a man.

Listen!

Now I shall speak.
I am still a child,
Or so they say.
But who are they to judge us?
Why must age determine
When we can join their ranks?
Are we all fullgrown at 21?
No sooner, no later?

Shealagh Kimball

Thoughts

A philosopher now feeds
Off long hair and beads—
With a record player
That's playing.
He talks for a day
About love and no pay—
He has no idea what
He's saying.
His words hit your ears
And raise countless fears
When there's really no reason
To run.
He talks of the trouble
And of atom bomb rubble
When it's really he who's
The one.

These thoughts of today
Are supposedly great.
To me they're mostly
Ninth-to-tenth rate.

The only thoughts I think
About these thoughts
That are thunk
Is that these thoughts
That are thunk
Are pure junk.

Frank Mellen

Paws toy with sand,

Sometimes paws claw.

Before she retreats.

Alan Bouffard

Freedom

Do you take your freedom for granted?
Or does it mean a lot to you,
Will you give it up or will you fight?
If confronted, what will you do?
Think long and hard about it,
Before a decision you voice,
It will be too late to reconsider,
After you've made your choice.
Will you go out and burn your draft card?
Or will you take a stand,
Will you turn your back on others?
Or lend a helping hand?
Remember there are many others,
People of different races,
They are trapped in Communist countries
And will gladly trade places.
Will you surrender freedom or will you fight?
How much does it mean to you?
It's time now for your decision,
What are you going to do?

Preview of Spring

We wake up in the morning
To see the rising sun,
And know by its bright splendor
The day has now begun.
The singing birds in distant trees
Echo soft their song,
To let us know the birth of spring
Is not too far along.

Nancy Ferguson

The Garden Looked Fresh After the Rain

In the midst of a rose bud is where I awoke. Huge streams of sparkling water were rushing toward me with great speed, but I managed to leap with all my might to an upper petal just in time to escape drowning. Noticing my surroundings, I decided to tour the garden and enjoy the scenery. The ground was dark and rich and very wet. I could see by looking at the bright green leaves of the small plants and trees that the rain had successfully cleaned the dust and dirt off the plants. The blossoms of the flowers sparkled with vitality and seemed too beautiful to be real. Seating myself on a large stone, I decided, from a lady bug's point of view, that after a rain the garden certainly looked fresh.

Harold

Harold was an obese white rooster;
His immensity could be attributed to his constant eating
Of corn, tomatoes, cucumbers, and weeds—they all appealed to him.
Although it isn't fair to poke fun at the lesser creatures,
My rooster had quite a few habits
That would make even a stoic smile.
Instead of standing his ground to fight his predators
(As all huge, overweight roosters are supposed to do),
He would rush blindly from any black-hearted
 kitten that came his way.
His habit of lying down while eating, although unusual,
Could perhaps be explained by his relation to the ancient Romans.
Harold was an odd bird
But I hated to see him presented on a platter
 at Thanksgiving.
He was my friend.

The Extrimaltriculate

Azure skies and zelby seas
Flow in sonski patterns
Along the vasili ways.
They move jodlessly
Until they reach the Wastaskilite beaches of Neretary sands which
Face the caxmite shore.
What then now have they Faxitalidated?
They have made the
Silatex form of lovely art,
The Extrimaltriculate.

Richard Brayall

Just a Friend

One such as he is never treated fair;
There is nothing you'll not dare
 To get from him.
Money from his pocket might
Flow into your own—
Somehow you just forget
 To repay the loan.
His courage you can sap
And his strength he lets you tap
But you never get enough
 To make your own.
He chased his own dream
And helped you reach yours;
You let him strive for success
While you stood in the shadows.
When the battles are past
And his breath is coming fast
You sneak in and take
 His sweat from him.
When the years pass on
And he's grabbed by another—
By the powerful hand
That steals us all,
You'll know then what it's like
(When he's ceased to be alive)—
You'll know then what it's like
 To survive.

I have come to America. It is a very beautiful country. The mountains are white in the winter. The lakes and rivers are covered with ice. The trees are brown, and the people are friendly. I am a stranger to this beautiful land. Before I came to America, I lived in a faraway country, Thailand. This is also a beautiful land, but the climate and people are different from America. I am used to a much warmer climate, and I have not seen my new country, America, during her warmer moments. The people of my native country, Thailand, are as warm as their climate, and I am looking forward to the time when my new country will be as warm as Thailand. How lovely a country America is.

Omnipotent Waters

Like Edward's God she despises the deceitful
Who fail to meet her fairly
Or crush the fools who think they can leave independent of her
She is merciful and protective to those who love and know her
But even those when false, will be cast aside
And spend the rest of their days wondering why?

Barry Hayes

The Monkey

A man is a robot
With a glass throat
Swallowing aspirin—
With wires for organs
And batteries for nerves.

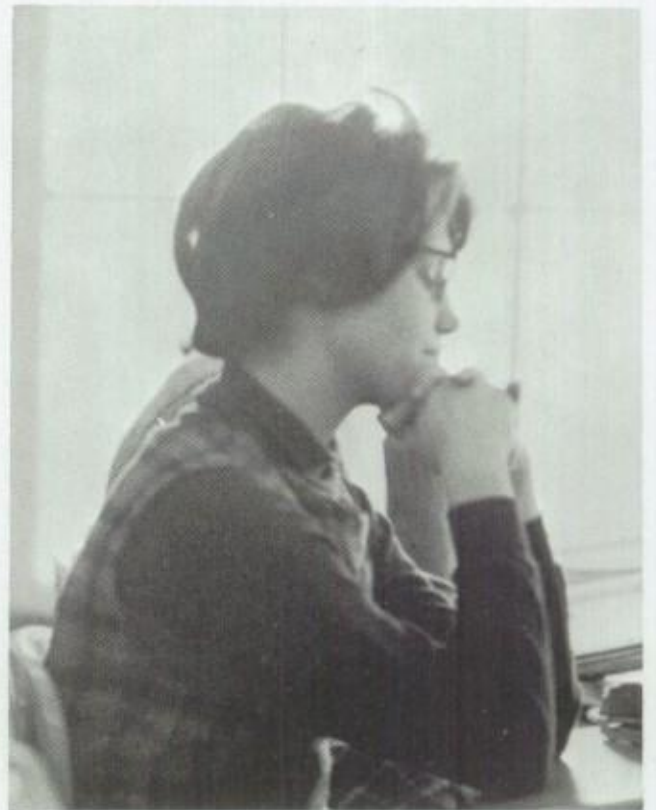

A man is a laugh-track
Echoing meaningless phrases
For meaningless audiences.

A man is a department-store manikin
Wearing a custom-made business suit
Which covers plastic skin
And makes a plastic smile.

A man is a slot machine
Which is fed by delight
And strengthened by fear.

A man is a tombstone
Sinking in the climbing grass—
Alone in a quiet field,
Surrounded by its relatives.

Frank Mellen

War is Hell for thousands of men,
Many of them for home do yen
But some will never see it again,
They must be brave and never complain;
Though the pelting bullets may leave them slain
They know their land they must defend;
For a country would be last without these men.

Vickey Tompkins

The things of Autumn enclosed
the two people
As they walked through the piles of leaves,
And on each branch there seemed to her to be
A piece of him to receive.

She learned so much about him
that day
As hand-in-hand they walked,
The little things that one seldom sees
The beautiful things about which he talked.

Then and only then my friend
Did this place begin to live,
And open up its wonders
So to the two to give.

The girl beheld one special thing
That's hard to put to words,
The type of thing that's often felt,
But never really heard.

But time called back this fleeting glimpse
Of beauty felt and seen,
And the girl took with her memories
For the future unforeseen.

She hopes that he will take her back,
When snow has covered the ground,
To show her his wood and to be near
To watch without a sound.

Fantasy No. 236 1/2

The King of Time arose from boredom
When he heard an hour gasp
As it crumbled into minutes.
He paused to seduce a day and promised to return when the week was born.

He caught sight of a free idea
While it was struggling to survive
As the hand of Establishment crushed its delicate blossoms.

Time smiled as he watched the thousand fragments
Fall into a thousand muddy rivers.

Time strutted on,
Snatched up the Soul of Man,
Placed him in his back pocket
With a bottle to keep him content.

Time tripped over the outstretched
foot of Hope

Thud! Splllat!

There was an ugly spot on Time's back pocket

"What a pity," thought Time,

"That kind of spot never comes out."

Mike Hurley

Ignorance is a fog that envelops the soul.

Knowledge is the light that dissipates the fog
And guides the boats safely into harbor.

Hate is the Ignorance of Love
Love is the Knowledge of Peace.

Hate and Ignorance are a bottomless pit that murders
The Mind, the Body, the Soul.
Love and Knowledge are the bridge over the pit
From Misery to Happiness.
